Charlotte Morel.

[CONCLUDED.]

"My money!" he gasped. "My money!" he shouted, recovering breath, and striking the floor with his umbrella. "Where is my money?"

They looked at him aghast. Monsieur Roussel remained with his uplifted card he was going to play in his hand, and stared with open mouth and eyes at his brother.

"I tell you I want my money," doggedly resumed Joseph. "I want my seven thousand five hundred francs."

"Seven thousand five hundred francs!" repeated the notary, turning livid, and a dreadful light seemed to break upon him as he heard the amount of the sum.

"Yes, seven thousand five hundred francs," sternly said Henri's uncle and godfather—"seven thousand five hundred francs, which were taken out of my desk this afternoon when Henri was in the house—do you hear?" and he rolled his eyes about and winked at them all with terrible significance.

Monsieur Roussel tried to speak, but words would not come to him. He sank forward on the table, and with his head lying there, uttered a deep, heart-broken groan.

Madame Roussel raised her hands to heaven, and uttered a despairing cry.

"We are ruined—ruined, disgraced, undone," she said, wildly; and falling back into her chair she went into hysterics; upon which Marie began sobbing violently, and little Louise, who had been staring round her in dismay, uttered a succession of piercing shrieks.

Charlotte alone preserving some presence of mind, ran to her aunt's assistance, and endeavored to calm her.

Joseph Roussel looked around him in grim and gloomy triumph, winking rapidly.

"Spare the rod and spoil the child," he said. "I knew just how it would always be—I always said so."

"For heaven's sake, have mercy on us," cried Monsieur Roussel, looking up wildly. "Perhaps Henri did not do it."

"Then who did?" angrily retorted his brother. "Do you want to cheat me out of my money, eh? You told me yourself he came to borrow seven thousand five hundred francs—did you not? Well, I tell you that I left Henri alone in the room with my desk, and when I came back at the end of a quarter of an hour, Henri had vanished, the key which I had forgotten on the table, was in the desk, and seven thousand five hundred francs in notes were gone. But if you think that I am going to bear with that loss just because Henri is my nephew and godson, you are much mistaken, all of you."

"Henri shall return that money—he only meant to borrow it, of course," agitatedly returned the notary. "But he shall return it, Joseph."

"And do you suppose I am going to wait till he returns me my money?" exclaimed Joseph Roussel, looking indignant and amazed at the very suggestion. "What do you think brought me here?"

"And how do you know that my son took your money?" asked Monsieur Roussel, with a feeble effort at skepticism.

"Did I not tell you so?" cried his brother, enraged.

"Well, but did you see him doing it?" asked Monsieur Roussel, with desperation, "did you see him?"

Joseph Roussel stared till his eyes seemed ready to start out of their sockets.

"See him?" he at length gasped forth—"see him open my desk and take out my hard-earned money, seven thousand five hundred francs!—you ask me if I saw him doing that. No, sir," he indignantly exclaimed, answering his own question, "I did not see him, because he took care not to do it till my back was turned. But I can tell you what Jean, my servant, saw and heard. He saw your son Henri at the post-office, handing over to the post-mistress a letter with five blue seals—five blue seals—and declaring it to be worth seven thousand five hundred francs. Now, what do you think of that?"

The notary groaned.

"For heaven's sake, have mercy upon me," he said, piteously.

"I want my money."

"You shall have it, though it will half ruin me," distractedly said Monsieur Roussel; "but keep it quiet—oh, keep it quiet."

"And what did I come here for but to keep it quiet?" screamed Joseph, at the pitch of his voice—"what did I come here for?"

"It will ruin me," said Henri's father, despairingly; "it will ruin me."

On hearing this, Madame Roussel burst into tears, and with many piteous sobs, she asked why her children were to be plundered for Henri's misdeeds.

Her husband heard her with a dull, vacant stare of misery.

There is a tragic hour in most lives, however tame and commonplace may seem their current, and that tragic hour had come to him. Grief and despair gave a terrible meaning to his little peevish face, and Charlotte's heart sank within her as she heard him mutter, in a low, dull voice:

"I will not be disgraced. On the day when this is known in Verrieres, I shall just go down the garden, and make a hole in the water—I will not be disgraced."

Even as he uttered the words, the door was opened and Henri, who had come back in his boat, and walked up the garden, entered the room.

"Cards," he said, carelessly, "cards—who wins?"

No one answered. He gave a sharp look round the room, and at once his careless look vanished. But he did not speak. He stood without uttering one word, evidently waiting. His father rose.

"Henri," he said, sternly, "you sent away seven thousand five hundred francs to Paris to-day?"

Henri looked thunderstruck.

"I did," he replied, at length.

"To whom?"

"I cannot tell."

"From whom did you get the money?"

"I cannot tell."

The young man spoke very sullenly, and looked black as night at the cross-examination to which he was subjected.

"You must get that money back," said his father, trying to speak composedly, though he was deadly pale, "for your uncle," he added, pointing to the dark part of the room where Joseph Roussel stood leaning on his umbrella, "has had his desk opened to-day, and seven thousand five hundred francs abstracted from it."

Henri gave a sudden start, and turned deadly pale.

"You did not think I should miss it so soon, did you?" asked his uncle Joseph, nodding at him, grimly. "But you had scarcely turned your back on the house when I saw seven thousand francs, and found out that my seven thousand francs were gone. Thank your stars that I am your godfather as well as your uncle," he added, in a menacing tone. "Thank your stars, I say."

Henri sank on a chair, and thence looked at him, then from him to his father. At first it seemed as if words would not pass his white lips. When he spoke at length, it was to address the notary, saying:

"Father, what do you say to this?"

Monsieur Roussel raised his trembling hand toward him.

"God forgive you, Henri," he said, in a broken voice.

Henri leaped up from the chair on which he was sitting; his blue eyes flashed like fire, his pale face grew still paler with wrath, as iron is at its hottest when it is whitest, and in a voice of thunder, he cried:

"Father! father! Tell me what you mean by this!"

"Do!—threaten your father after dishonoring him," cried Madame Roussel, starting up with mingled fear and hate.

Henri gave his stepmother a look of indignation and scorn, but before he could open his lips to reply, Charlotte went up to the notary, and laying her hand on his arm, she said in a low, indignant voice, whilst her other outstretched hand pointed to Henri:

"Uncle, uncle, do you not see that your son is innocent?"

"Innocent!" gasped the notary, staring round the room, "how so?"

"How so! look at him and see it. Henri Roussel is innocent—I tell you he is innocent," she added, her eyes flashing with generous indignation, "and that you ought to all die with shame at having doubted him."

"Yes, I am innocent," sternly said the young man, "and what is more, I can prove it. That money which uncle so kindly accuses me of having taken from his desk, I already had before I saw him. I borrowed it on my vineyard above Verrieres. Ask Farmer Grange, and see if he will deny it."

"Then who took my money?" cried Monsieur Joseph Roussel, looking very wild.

"That is your business, not mine," bitterly replied the young man; then looking round, he added:

"I have learned this evening what trust in my honor I may expect in this house. Let no one of you wonder that I shall henceforth make my home among strangers. I leave Verrieres this very night—now, this moment, and it will be strange indeed if I should ever set foot in it again."

He looked round the room once more; then going straight up to the spot where Charlotte stood alone:

"God bless you!" he said, with much emotion, "God bless you!"

She did not answer. She stood before him, passive, like one in a dream.

He said no more, but turned away and was gone.

As the door closed upon him, as they heard his step rapidly going up the staircase, the notary, recovering from his amazement, turned angrily on his brother:

"How dare you come with your cock-and-bull stories to me?" he cried, with fury. "How dare you accuse my son of robbery?"

Monsieur Joseph Roussel slapped his forehead. Then a sudden light seemed to break upon him.

"I know who did it," he cried; "I know," and he rushed furiously out of the house like one distracted.

The notary threw himself down on a chair, and addressing his wife, said, ruefully:

"Louise, you should have told me not to believe it—you should have told me."

Madame Roussel raised her pocket-handkerchief to her eyes, and speaking from behind it, said, in a melancholy voice:

"It falls upon me because I am not his mother."

Charlotte signed to Marie to follow her out of the room. When they both stood outside the door, she whispered:

"Go and beg of your brother not to leave the house to-night."

"I dare not," replied Marie, whose eyes were red with weeping. "Henri never minds what I say."

"Try, Marie—try," urged Charlotte.

The girl went reluctantly, and very impatiently Charlotte waited for her at the foot of the staircase. Marie soon came down; Henri's door was locked, and he had refused to admit her.

Madame Roussel now joined them, heard this, and looked piteously at her niece.

"You try Charlotte," she said.

"I!" said Charlotte, with a start.

"Yes, do. My poor husband is almost broken-hearted, but will not say a word to keep him, and Henri would not mind me; but he will surely hear you. If he would only stay to-night! Do try, Charlotte. You can go and sit up stairs, and speak to him when he is coming down."

She put a light in her niece's hand, and Charlotte took it like one in a dream. She went up to the room on the first floor, and sat down, leaving the door open.

Everything looked very gaunt and dreary in the pale light of the wax candle, burning quietly on the table. The tall, ledger-like books, the dull iron safe, the stiff, black chairs, were very grim and forbidding of aspect; but Charlotte, if she saw, did not heed them.

She was listening to sounds in the room above, sounds of hurried footsteps and moving furniture, which ended at length in the unlocking of a door and a step coming down the staircase.

Without leaving her chair, or even looking round, Charlotte said, in a low voice:

"Henri!"

She spoke so low that he might not have heard her; but he did. He came in at once. He threw the carpet-bag he was carrying upon the floor; he drew a chair near hers, and sitting down he took the hand that hung loosely in the folds of her black dress, and raised it to his lips.

"God bless you for your faith in me!" he said, in a low voice—"I shall never forget it—never."

"I trust you are not going," she said, without looking round at him. "Your father and mother are both deeply grieved."

"Don't you believe it," he interrupted, bitterly; "they never loved me, or they could not have thought me guilty so readily. What have I ever done to deserve such an insult as this?"

"Ah! nothing—nothing indeed," Charlotte could not help saying; "but they repent it—forgive them."

"Willingly—but I will not live with them. This evening has burned itself into my very soul. It has shown me two things it is not in my power to forget—their doubt, and your faith in my honor."

He rose as he said this.

"Pray, do stay," she urged.

"Stay! What for?" he asked, moodily.

"They will suspect me next for that money; they will want to know what I am doing with it and if I do not tell them—and I will not—they will shake their heads, and say, 'Henri is going to ruin. We always said so.'"

Charlotte was silent.

"But you must think no harm of me for that," he resumed, eagerly; "that money is to save a friend from disgrace. I run no risk—I have security to double the amount I lend; but to have it known that he borrows would ruin him, and ruin him so thoroughly that I should not have told you so much, only I could not bear you should think, as they will be sure to say, that I am a spendthrift and a profligate."

"Pray, do stay," she said again.

"I cannot." You have been very good to me this evening—better than I deserve—but I cannot stay."

"Why so?"

"Do not ask me."

His voice shook as he uttered the words.

For the first time Charlotte turned her face toward him. Their looks met; their eyes were very dim with tears; yet each read the same story in the other's gaze. In a moment the tale was told, understood, and firmly believed in forever.

"Then you like me—you do like me!" cried Henri, amazed and delighted.

"A little—but very little," she replied, smiling demurely; "for, if you persist in going, how can I like you?"

"Ah, how can I go now!" he exclaimed, overjoyed.

All the wisdom of Verrieres went distracted on the day when Charlotte and Henri's banns were published. A nice mess of poor Monsieur Morel's money these two would be sure to make, and a nice life they would lead. It is mortifying to record it, but the wisdom of Verrieres was again all wrong.

The business flourished in the hands of the young pair, and Charlotte's faith in him was the spell which bound the dragon of Henri's temper forever. Never once—and three years have passed since their wedding day—did that fierce dragon waken when she was concerned, though truth compels us to say that Henri's uncle and godfather once or twice found how that dragon was not always sleeping.

The unfortunate gentleman's seven thousand five hundred francs were never recovered, and the mystery of their disappearance promises to become one of the legends of Verrieres.

ANTIQUITY OF MAN.

At a recent meeting of the German naturalists and physicians, at Innsbruck in the Tyrol, Dr. Karl Vogt, of Geneva, summed up the main results of the recent Congress of Paleontologists at Copenhagen. After vindicating the place of primeval history as one of the exact physical sciences, he divided the subject under three headings.

1. The age of the human race.—There is no longer any doubt that man existed in Europe—probably the latest peopled part of the world at a time when the great southern animals, the elephants, mammoth, rhinoceros, hippopotamus—were found there, which are now extinct. Even where no human remains or tools have been found, the acute researches of Steenstrup have found traces of man by the bones which have been gnawed by animals from those which show signs of having been split by man for the sake of the marrow, or otherwise handled by him. It is equally certain that posterior to the advent of man the Straits of Gibraltar, of Dover, and the Dardanelles, as well as Sicily and Africa, were still united by isthmuses; the whole Mediterranean area was separated from Africa by a sea in the basin of Sahara; the Baltic was a sea of ice covering the whole of the low levels of Northern Germany and Russia, and cutting off Finland, Sweden and Norway, into what would have been an island, but for its junction with Denmark. The astonishing researches of Lartet in France, of Fraas in Germany, and of Dupont in Belgium, have proved that this period was succeeded by another, in which men hunted in the countries of Central Europe the reindeer and other arctic animals, in an arctic climate, and surrounded by an arctic flora. We may also speak with confidence of the migration of these primeval races; the human condition of the most ancient animals—the mammoth, the cave-bear, and the cave-lion—can only be traced in Central Europe and Switzerland. In Central Europe and Switzerland the remains are unknown. In the "reindeer period," again, we find man in Switzerland and in Sussia, but no traces of him in North Germany and Denmark.

2. The growth of primeval civilization is shown by the striking similarity of the tools dug up in caves of the "reindeer period," in the South of France with those of the Esquimaux and Greenlanders collected in the Museum at Copenhagen. Our primeval Europeans were no doubt savages in the fullest sense, even those with a white skin being distinctly inferior, so far as we can make out, to the lowliest of modern savages—the Australian. They were cannibals, as has been lately shown by researches in Copenhagen. The lake villages in Switzerland, and the other hand, show that agriculture and pastoral life flourished while the metals were still unknown, and that the introduction of them was connected with barter and trade. We are acquainted at present with a number of primeval manufacturing localities, and of the commercial routes which were used in the rudest times. It can be shown, moreover, that our civilization came not from Asia, but from Africa; and Heer has proved that the civilized plants in the Swiss lake villages are of African, and to a great extent, of Egyptian origin.

3. The corporeal development of man, and the different families, kinds, and races of men, have been less investigated than the corresponding divisions of the ape type. In many places the skulls discovered have been few; but less than a year ago a cemetery of more than forty human skulls and skeletons, belonging to the "reindeer period," was discovered near Soltau, in France. We, therefore, now have considerable material for arriving at conclusions respecting primeval man of this period. There can be no doubt that man approaches more nearly in bodily conformation to the animal, and especially his nearest relative, the ape, the lower his stage of culture. As the ape, the lower his stage of culture, gradually goes on these characteristics gradually vanish; the forehead becomes more upright, the skull higher and more dome-shaped, and the projecting countenance gradually recedes under the skull. These changes are the result of man's conflict with his circumstances, and of the mental labor with which that conflict entails.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

LONDON.—THE RECENT MASSACRE IN GREECE.—Mr. Julius Stern, a Jewish gentleman of Vienna, who has been traveling for purposes of health, in Greece, became—while in that country—acquainted with the late Mr. Herbert, a victim of the recent massacre, and had engaged to join this party in the fatal excursion; but a mere accident prevented him from doing so. He was thus miraculously preserved from sharing the deplorable fate of our countrymen, whose untimely death we, in common with all Englishmen, so deeply lamented as an almost personal bereavement.—J. C.

Mr. G. Jessel, has been placed on the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Conventual and Monastic Institutions. The Committee includes a Jew, a Catholic, a Protestant and a Quaker.

SYRIA.—KERECK.—MORTARA REVERSED.—A Christian woman had recently her infant circumcised. She pretended to have had a revelation, and to have received a command from heaven to do it. The child remained under the care of the congregation. The pastor of the place, however, dissatisfied with the matter, complained to the authorities. There was going to be a law suit about it, but the congregation thought better of it, and decided to return the child, not desiring to make any proselytes by surprise and violence.

MEZ.—For the adoption of Polish orphans, the congregation of Metz has voted an annual contribution of 300 francs; the congregation of Schallbach has adopted one; that of St. Etienne, one; Mr. C. Bloch, manufacturer, and Mr. Gustav Marx, merchant, both of Sherwiller, have each adopted one; and the congregation of Kosteck, three orphans.

MANHEIM.—A new school is going to be established at Mannheim, calculated to receive three thousand pupils. It is to be non-sectarian; from six to eight Jewish teachers will be appointed in the school. At the Heidelberg University are six Jewish professors.

ROUMANIA.—The programme of the Epureano, the chief of the new Cabinet, has been published. He proclaims the maintenance of order in the interior and respect for the rights of the Jews.

VIENNA.—The Society for the support of poor orphans of the Vienna congregation held lately its third triennial meeting. It was opened with a recitation of a prologue, composed by Leopold Komper, entitled "God's Orphan." The President of the Society, Mr. Joseph von Wertheimer, read then the report of the Board of Trustees. Satisfaction is expressed therein that the constantly increasing contributions enable the Society to extend annually its field of operation in the interests of humanity. While the Society in the first years of its existence was only enabled to take care of not more than 30 orphans, it provided in the last year for 153 orphans at an expense of 11,000 florins. During the nine years of the existence of the Society 65,000 florins were expended for the support of orphans; 214 of them were provided for, of which 177 are yet under the care of the Society. The Board of Directors show the necessity of erecting an asylum instead of providing for the children in various families, but as the funds at the command of the Society, 77,000 florins, is neither sufficient nor applicable for such a purpose according to the charter, it is intended to appeal to the community for a subscription of the necessary funds.

M. JULES POGNO, the Dutch Consul General, who lately died in Rio Janeiro, was properly called Pogson, as his ancestors were originally from Posen, and subsequently established themselves in Amsterdam. Some of his relatives are residents of New York, and prominent citizens.

The harvest prospect in Eastern Europe is quite flattering.

BUSINESS MEN, worn by care and sedentary habits, often suffer from constipation of the bowels, until the evil consequences of such a condition are realized in extreme debility, nervousness and prostration of the vital energies of the system, and it may be safely asserted that a majority of the female sex are little better than invalids, from the same cause; but by simply using Dr. Walker's Vegetable Vinegar Bitters, this natural aperient and tonic brings back the vigor and buoyancy of health.

VISCHER'S PICTORIAL OF CALIFORNIA.—Our merchants and others visiting the East and Europe, can, surely, take no more acceptable present with them, than the above Pictorial, which shows all the beauties and wonders of our golden land. The Pictorial will only be sold to subscribers. The list is open at the office of the publisher, No. 525 Front street. For price, etc., see card in another column.

To families and others, living in the southern part of the city, having prescriptions to be prepared, we can safely recommend Mr. Geo. S. Dickey, corner Market, Ellis, Stockton and Fourth streets, the Pioneer Apothecary of San Francisco. Mr. Dickey, also, keeps constantly on hand a splendid assortment of Toilet Articles.

The attention of dealers in tobacco is called to the fact that Messrs. E. Johnson & Co., No. 608 Clay street, are sole agents for the Detroit American Eagle Chewing Tobacco.

Carpets of every conceivable pattern and at lowest rates can be had at the splendid Carpet Warehouse of Mr. John G. Nelson, No. 643 Market street. Give him a call.

ELIJAH.

[CONCLUDED.]

The drought continues; the fertile plains are parched with heat, the fountains are all dried up, there is no food for man, no herbage for cattle. At this juncture, Elijah suddenly appears before the King, who has sent to every nation and kingdom to search him out and wreak his vengeance upon him. Observe how Ahab, the man of sin, addresses the man of God.

"Art thou he that troubleth Israel?"
How do these few words depict the sinner in all the enormity of his guilt! That man, whose wickedness had plunged the whole land into the depth of misery, accuses the righteous prophet, whose feeling heart is bleeding for his people, of destroying Israel. Elijah replies:

"Thou hast destroyed Israel, in that thou hast forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and followed the Baalim."

He did not quail before the angry frowns of the King. And see how Ahab feels that his superior is standing before him. He ventures no longer to address him, and consents without a murmur to Elijah's imperious command:

"Gather to me all Israel unto Mount Carmel, the prophets of Baal and of the groves."

Thus have great and high-minded men always proved mightier than those who rule with brute force and blood-stained hands. So did the Pharaoh of Egypt feel how superior Moses was to him; so has virtue ever triumphed over vice; it will triumph as gloriously as Elijah did over the wicked idolaters on Mount Carmel.

Study and ponder well over that grand scene on the Mount—how one single man conquered millions! And what was the weapon with which he achieved this glorious victory? It was by a single but fervent PRAYER. And prayer has been the mighty, as it has also ever been the successful, weapon, with which all pious men have defeated the enemy within and the enemy without.

Our ancestor, Jacob, when he had taken the necessary precautions to guard against a sudden attack of his brother Esau, poured out his soul before God in fervent prayer. And David, the sweet singer of Israel, who had to encounter so many dangers, speaks almost in every Psalm of the efficacy of prayer.

And prayer, fervent prayer, must be your comfort, your blessed resource in the time of trouble, anxiety, and fear, when you have to fight against poverty, when you have to struggle hard to obtain a scanty livelihood, and find what you earn during the day barely sufficient to bring a loaf of bread to your famishing wife, to your crying children; when you see them shivering with cold, and have not the means to provide them with clothing. Yes, sincere prayer will comfort your afflicted heart, and save you from despair. Pray, then, to God, and put your trust in Him, and "He will send you help from the sanctuary, and strengthen you out of Zion."

Ahab and the whole people had now acknowledged the true God: the false, deceitful prophets of Baal had been slain; God had again been merciful to His people; the long and terrible drought had ceased; "the heaven was black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain." Should we not think, that the people and its rulers, overflowing with gratitude, would now listen with reverential awe to God's holy prophet, that Jezebel would be convinced of her wickedness in serving idols, and persecuting Elijah? Oh, no! she sends a messenger to him with the cruel message:

"So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by to-morrow about this time."

This shows how terribly pernicious, how ineradicable, are the evil impressions which we receive in our youth, how indelibly they remain stamped upon our mind. Jezebel had been brought up among the idolatrous Sidonians, and she therefore hated every believer in the true God of Israel.

But her cruel plans are frustrated. Elijah is again saved; for, in the words of the Psalmist: "The wicked watches the righteous, and seeketh to slay him, but the Lord will not leave him in his hands." Though the wicked man is plotting to render the pious man unhappy, to take away his honor, nay, his life, God shields him from his enemies, "delivers him from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence."

And this trust in God must sustain and encourage you when danger threatens. "He will give His angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways."

The lessons to be derived from the history of the vineyard of Naboth—how king Ahab first desired its possession, and was then persuaded by his unscrupulous wife Jezebel to murder its owner—are as manifold as they are striking and impressive. We can now only remind our readers how Ahab was led to perpetrate this terrible crime, by transgressing the tenth, the apparently insignificant, commandment, "Thou shalt not covet." But though the last, it is in reality, as our sages have observed, the most important commandment. The eye and the heart are the two grand instigators to sin, and, therefore, has our Holy Law so energetically warned us: "Ye shall not seek after your own heart, and your own eyes." Hearken to the terrible words which Elijah pronounces, "Hast thou murdered and also taken possession?" which well might make the guilty man quake and shudder at the enormity of his crime.

So will our own conscience upbraid us, so will remorse torment us with its sharp sting, when it is too late; thus shall we endeavor in vain to stifle its voice by exclaiming, "Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?" And the object of our desire, the possession of which we so much coveted, which our fancy painted to us in such glowing colors, will then appear to us as valueless—nay, hateful. Let us, therefore, keep our mind from envying our neighbor's possessions; let us reflect that no riches, no splendor can compensate us for the terrors and tortures of a guilty conscience.

At last, the voice of the godly prophet makes a deep and permanent impression upon Ahab. "When he heard these words, he rent his clothes, put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted." And the All-seeing who knew that his penance was not merely outward, but sincere, promised not to bring the evil in his days.

Thus we see again verified in this instance, what Holy Writ preclaims in so many passages; that God is "merciful, gracious, long-suffering, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgressions and sins."

The life of Elijah, of which we have given only some of the remarkable incidents, was one of self-denial, occupied in the diffusion of Divine truths, and in the religious instruction of his nation.—D. O. R. K.

CONFIRMATION CEREMONY AT STOCKTON.

THE Synagogue, on Sunday afternoon last, was crowded to witness the confirmation of a number of young ladies and a lad of fourteen years of age. Among the auditors were a number of the clergymen of the city, and many members of different religious denominations. The services were opened by the choir, which, by the way, was only lately organized, and consists of the following named young ladies, viz.: Miss Amelia Hart, Miss Hannah Strauss, Miss Jenny Weinstein, Miss R. Rosenthal, Miss Kalisher, Miss Fannie Hart, Miss Jenny Rosenthal and Miss Kolman. The choir was under the direction of Willie Carmichael. After prayer, Rev. Mr. Weinstein delivered a very stirring, fervent, eloquent and impressive sermon, mainly addressed to the young people, particularly to those about to be confirmed, whose names we give: Miss Jenny Weinstein, Miss Kalisher, Miss Marks and Master Thomas Loey. They were seated on the platform in front of the Holy Ark, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. They were first examined in their catechism, after which the reverend gentleman then made a short and appropriate address upon the importance of the step they were about to take, and asked them whether they were ready to accept the doctrines of the Hebrew Church as laid down in the thirteen creeds by Maimonides? The young folks responded separately, promptly acknowledging their readiness to accept the same. This part of the ceremony was so affecting that a large number of the auditors were moved to tears. Rev. Mr. Weinstein then addressed parents, pointing out, in a very forcible manner, their duties to their children, and closed with a benediction. Each of the newly confirmed then repeated, separately, a prayer invoking the blessings of Divine Power for strength to enable them to fulfil the solemn vows they had made. The parents then, separately, blessed their children, and the ceremony closed with a farewell address by Rev. Mr. Weinstein to the children of the school. Miss Kalisher then presented two handsome poetical works to Rev. Mr. Weinstein. Altogether the occasion was one which will long be cherished in pleasing remembrance by every person who had the good fortune to be present. Great credit is certainly due to the reverend gentleman who officiated for the thorough manner in which he perfected the children in their studies, as not a single mistake occurred during the entire exercises. The choir is also deserving of credit for the music and responses so well rendered.—Independent.

NEW YORK.—The annual report of the Temple Emanuel Congregation shows an income of last year of $92,627 60, among which $34,000 payment on pews and $17,190 donations to the Orphan Asylum, so that the usual receipts amount to about $38,500, of which $8,000 were expended during the year. The congregation has three hundred and nine members and sixty-one seat-holders. This is now the largest Hebrew congregation in the United States.

DEPARTURE.—On Friday last, Mr. M. Seligsohn, one of our oldest and best known merchants, left for a visit to Europe. We wish him a pleasant voyage and safe return.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

[From the Resident Correspondent of THE HEBREW.]

New York, June 7, 1870.

EDITOR HEBREW:—The Shebuoth festival always being a great interest on account of the confirmation services in the Radical as well as slight Reform Congregations, was fittingly observed in the diverse Synagogues of Gotham. On Saturday last, Rev. James K. Gutheim of Temple Emanuel, preached on the condition of the Jews in Roumania. Dispatches had been published in several English and German papers, stating that great atrocities had been inflicted on our co-religionists in Roumania, that a regular mediaeval persecution had been commenced and several thousand Jews had been slaughtered. This report is gainsaid by a Cable dispatch to-day. You will remember that when Congress passed a resolution to have a consulate at Roumania, Senator Sprague tried to defend the actions of the Roumanian people on account of the Jews amassing wealth in Roumania. For this he was pretty roughly handled by Rev. Gutheim, who suggested the warning, that the air in which the Senator has been reared (Mass.), the principles which he had imbibed required to be purified and revised. The words which Senator Sprague uttered on that occasion contain the lesson for the American people to be careful in the selection of their representatives, in order to preserve the blessings of civil and religious liberty in all its purity and grandeur.

Following a time honored custom the different Synagogues had been profusely decorated for the feast of Pentecost. Foremost amongst them was the Temple Emanuel. Three large arches of cut flowers, containing over 1,000 roses, had been built over the Sanctum and a band of music had been directly engaged for the confirmation services. About sixty boys and girls were confirmed. Dr. Adler spoke in German, being followed by Dr. Gutheim, who touchingly addressed the class to be confirmed, reminding them that henceforth they must be Israelites not merely by birth, but from conviction. At the conclusion of the services, Louis May, Esq., President of the Temple Emanuel, presented to the Congregation a new Sefer-Thora, gorgeously attired. Similar services were held in the Thirty-ninth street Temple Adath-Jeshurun, Norfolk street Anshi-Chesed, etc., etc.

In response to the appeal of the Board of Delegates of American Israelites, asking substantial aid for the newly arrived Russian immigrants, the Rev. Jacob Kantrowitz preached an eloquent and fervent sermon in the Synagogue Beth-Israel-Bikur-Cholim, in which he depicted the misery of these newly arrived co-religionists in glowing colors. The Rev. gentleman closed with the words: "We are one nation, have one law, and above all reverence One God. All Israel is bound one unto another. It matters not where he is born—he is of our race." His appeal was quite successful, for although this is but a small Congregation, yet about Three Hundred Dollars were immediately subscribed by the different members, and we might say, if every other Congregation will do likewise in proportion, we will be enabled to give substantial aid to those, who confiding in our charitable feelings towards them, seek our shores for new homes for themselves and families.

To-morrow will be laid the Corner-stone for the new Masonic Temple, corner Twenty-third street and Sixth Avenue. Extensive preparations have been made for this affair, and it promises to be a grand one.

We are happy to record the following of a very reputable member of the New York bar, H. Barnard, Judge of the Supreme Court of this district, had lately been requested by S. B. Hart, Vice-President of the Mount Sinai Hospital, to contribute something towards the building fund. He subscribed fifty dollars. Lately the Judge requested Mr. Hart to call for the money. When Mr. Hart appeared, the charitable Judge handed over to him a check for Five Hundred Dollars, expressing his intention to increase this amount at a future day.

Truly yours, VERITAS.

RABBI SNEERSOHN ON ROUMANIA.—On Sunday evening next, at Mercantile Library Hall, Rabbi Sneersohn, the eminent Oriental traveler and Talmudist, will deliver a lecture on "Roumania and the Roumanian Jews." Having been twice in the Danubian Principalities, Rabbi Sneersohn is well qualified to speak of the country, the government, the people and the Jews, the latter of whom number some half a million of the five millions of its population. The dreadful sufferings and persecutions to which our race have been subjected in that benighted country for the past four years, and in fact, since the Crimean War, and the recent frightful massacre which though not as extensive in the number of victims as at first reported, was still, according to dispatches received from M. Cremieux, President of the Alliance Israelite Universelle, of France, of the most serious and savage character, must make this subject of deep interest to every Israelite, while every heart alive to humanity, must experience sympathy in these fearful scenes. We expect every seat in the Hall will be filled.

MARYSVILLE.—At a meeting of the Marysville Hebrew Benevolent Society, held Tuesday, a resolution was unanimously passed, making Isidore Koch, the retiring Secretary, an honorary member for life, in consideration of valuable services rendered to the Society.

DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW MOUNT SINAI HOSPITAL BUILDING AT NEW YORK.

THE new Hospital will comprise a central or administrative building on Lexington Avenue, with a frontage of 60 feet and a depth of 52, from which there will be an extension in the rear, 20 feet by 20. The wings or pavilion will have a frontage of 31 feet and a depth of 130 feet. They will be connected with the administrative building by corridors, 37 feet in length and 18 feet in width. Thus the entire establishment will have a frontage on the avenue of about 200 feet. The steam-apparatus, gas-house, pumping-engines, etc., will be located in the rear. The style of architecture will be the Elizabethan, and the material chosen for the construction of the building, Philadelphia brick and marble. The basement of the three fronts will be faced with the best Philadelphia brick. The jambs, pediments and lintels of the windows will be of marble, with marble sills and belt courses. A Mansard roof, with towers and a large centre dome, will surmount the edifice. The crest ornaments, cornices and balustrades will be of iron-work. The grand entrance to the central building will be covered by a portico 15 feet in width, with columns, arches, cornices and balustrades complete. On the front of the central building between the second and third stories, will be placed a large marble tablet bearing the name of the institution. The great feature of this building, which will certainly be one of the handsomest and most imposing in the city, is the distance—125 feet—between the pavilions. The greatest width yet given has not exceeded 110 feet. This is a most important point in establishments of this class, where light and ventilation are essential elements.

The administration building will have a cellar 60 feet by 52 and 8 feet in height, with a basement of nearly the same dimensions. The first story will contain four rooms, each 19 feet by 22, for the accommodation of the managers of the institution, the apothecary and physician. One apartment will be used as a reception room. The halls will be 10 feet wide, extending each way, and will be laid with marble tiling. The second story will contain nine private wards, with closets, bath-rooms, lavatories and nurses' rooms. The third will contain four private wards, with bath-rooms, etc., as in the second story. Here, also, will be the synagogue, 19 feet by 56. In the fourth story there will be a hall 25 feet by 50 and 25 feet in height, with an elegant domed ceiling. It will be lighted through the roof and by side windows. Here the clinical lectures will be delivered. In connection with this hall will be six small retiring-rooms. In the extension will be the grand stair-case, the elevators and dumb-waiters. The corridors on each side of this building, leading to the pavilions, will contain a basement and first story. The basements will be used as store-rooms and dining-rooms, and the first story will, of course, form the passage-ways. These will be eighteen feet in width, with marble floors, and ornamented with columns, pilasters, pedestals and urns for containing flowers. The pavilions will contain basements ten feet in height, a first and second stories, and open lofts sixteen feet in height. The basements are intended to be used for store rooms, laundries, drying, bedding and dissecting rooms. Here, too, will be the servants' rooms and the dead-house. On the second and third floors will be the wards. Each ward will accommodate twenty patients, allowing 1,400 cubic feet of air to each. Nurses' rooms, private rooms, closets, lavatories, linen-rooms, bath-rooms will be provided on each floor. In all about 200 patients will find accommodation in the establishment, which will be fitted up in the most complete manner with all the latest improvements, and with some which have never yet been introduced in any similar institution. There will be five large elevators and three dumb-waiters. The five flights of iron stairs will be inclosed in brick walls. Steam will be used for heating the building, and ventilation will be amply provided for. Indeed, if the architect's plans in this particular are fully carried out, the ventilation of the building will be superior to any in this country, and perhaps in the world.

It is estimated that the cost of the building will be about $300,000, and it is hoped that the work will be completed before the end of the next year.—N. Y. Times.

[OBITUARY.]

ISIDORE KOSHLAND.

"He is no more." Suddenly, he was called away when life's hope seemed brightest, and his future ambition still unfilled. Never shall we see again his kind and cheerful smile amongst us, for he has gone to that place whence there is no return, but where we are all equal and happy. May his soul rest in peace. The funeral of the deceased took place Monday last and was largely attended by his friends, relatives, and members of the Hebrew Youths' Literary Association, of which the deceased was a highly respected member. At the grave, Mr. J. L. Lewison, one of the members, delivered a very impressive and eloquent address. Dr. Frankel also delivered an address in German. The following resolutions were adopted at a special meeting, held by the H. Y. L. A., on the 12th inst.:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, to summon from our midst, our fellow member, ISIDORE KOSHLAND, be it

Resolved: That in his death, we recognize the loss of a worthy member of our association and a faithful companion; one whose friendship we valued highly, and whose congenial disposition and pleasant manners, made his association so much sought after and appreciated, and be it

Resolved: That in respect to the memory of the deceased, the library rooms be draped in mourning for thirty days, and furthermore be it

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be presented to his bereaved parents to whom we extend our deeply felt sympathies, and that a copy of the same be published in the HEBREW, Hebrew Observer, and Alta California.

THERE has been found in the library of the Hartley Institution, Southampton, a copy of the first edition of "Paradise Regained," and "Samson Agonistes," which were licensed in 1670, exactly 200 years ago. The following is a copy of the title page, viz.: "Paradise Regained, A Poem. In four books, to which is added Samson Agonistes. The Author John Milton. London: Printed by F. M., for John Starkey, at the Mitre, in Fleet street, near Temple Bar, 1671."

Deutsches Theater.

Der außerordentliche Beifall, den die Vorstellung am vergangenen Sonntag gefunden, und besonders das volle Haus, welches dieselbe gezogen hatte, gaben wiederum einen neuen Beweis, wie sehr das deutsche Theater an Popularität hier gewinnt, und wie sehr auch die Bemühungen der Direction, dasselbe in jeder Beziehung zu einem wohlgeleiteten zu machen, anerkannt und gewürdigt werden. Zur Aufführung gelangte die bekannte Zauberposse „Der artifice Brunnen“ von Rauber. Wenn auch dieser alten Posse, die zu den früher so beliebten Zauberposen gehört, nicht viel Sinn und Verstand inne wohnt, so ist in derselben doch noch immer ein Körnchen jenes echten Humors enthalten, welcher, trotzdem er niemals verfallen wird eine große Wirkung auf den unbefangenen Zuschauer auszuüben, gerade den meisten unserer neuen Possen vollkommen abhanden gekommen zu sein scheint. Der Erfolg, den dieses Stück erlangte, und zu welchem auch die Träger der Hauptrollen, Frau Genee, Frä. Wolff und Herr Lube das Ihrige beitrugen, war daher auch ein recht guter. Das Spiel des Herrn Lube befand sich, als Balthasar, in seiner Beziehung etwas zu wünschen übrig. In allen Phasen dieser Rolle, sei es nun als Hausknecht, als Soldat der aufgeregten Fremdenlegion, oder gar als Bewohner des Nordpols, war dasselbe gleich gut und überall musste er die drastische Komik derselben mit vielem Geschick zur Geltung zu bringen. Frä. Wolff erwarb sich, namentlich ihre Rolle, Erbschaft, keine bedeutende war, durch ihr nettes und graciöses Spiel vielen Beifall. Besonders Anfang fand auch das von ihr sehr hübsch vorgetragene Lied „Lieben geht's ich Dein“. Die Barbara der Frau Genee war ebenfalls eine gut gefundene Leistung, die vielen Stoff zum Lachen darbot. Herr Frank dagegen hatte sehr leicht etwas mehr Natürlichkeit in seine Rolle, Gräbelen, hineinlegen unbedeutend etwas weniger sich führen können. Die übrigen, mehr sehr unbedeutenden Rollen, wurden zum größten Theil gut und sicher über die Bühne geführt.

Am nächsten Sonntag gelangt die bekannte und überall so beliebte Posse „Cinco von uns“ zur Aufführung. Die Hauptrollen derselben „Isaac Stern“ und „Ernestine“ haben Herr Lube und Frä. Wolff übernommen.

— Abschieds-Konzert für Frau Reiffarth-Rothschild. — Am Freitag, den 24. ds. M., findet in der Pacific Halle ein Abschieds-Konzert für Frau Reiffarth-Rothschild statt, bei welchem die ersten musikalischen Kräfte San Francisco's, so wie ein voll besetztes Orchester, unter der Leitung des Herrn Evans, mitwirken werden. Die allgemeine Beliebtheit, welche sich Frau Reiffarth hier zu erfreuen hatte, wird dieses Konzert gewiss zu einem recht erfolgreichen machen.

MAGUIRE'S OPERA HOUSE.—The celebrated Troupe of British Blondes, secured by Mr. Maguire at a great cost, made their first appearance last night at this theatre, to an immense audience, who received the excellent playing and singing of the really talented artists with a well deserved applause. The entertainment commenced with the pretty comedy „To Oblige Benson“, and concluded with the burlesque of „Luna“, or the Little Boy who cried for the Moon.

CALIFORNIA THEATRE.—The benefit of Miss Emily Melville, which took place at the above place of amusement, on Wednesday evening last, proved a great ovation indeed, the theatre being crowded from pit to dome. The entertainment consisted of „Don Cesar de Bazan“, and the „Jealous Wife“, with the fair beneficiary and Mr. Montgomery in the leading characters.

WOODWARD'S GARDEN.—Of all the places of recreation in and around San Francisco, Woodward's Garden is the most beautiful as well as the most instructive. We do not know which to praise most, the splendid botanical display, the fine and rare menagerie, the picture gallery, hot house, or the many other attractive features of this oasis in our city. Every Sunday a grand concert is given by an orchestra composed of some of the best musicians in our city.

CHAMPION BILLIARD MATCH.—To-morrow evening, at Platt's Hall, Messrs. Little and Creery will play a carom-game, 1200 points up, for the possession of the silver cue and the championship of the Pacific coast. The game promises to be highly interesting, as Mr. Little and Mr. Creery have been practicing steadily, and each shown some excellent play.

THE picnic of the A. J. O. K. S. B., proved quite a success. It took place on Sunday last, at the City Gardens, and all participants enjoyed themselves to their heart's content.

MILLINERY GOODS.—Messrs. Haker & Hintz, importers of Parisian millinery goods, laces, velvets, satins, etc., have removed to the large store, Nos. 5 and 7 Sutter street, and running through to 506 Market street. The above firm possessing unsurpassed facilities in purchasing their goods in Europe, offer great inducements to the trade. Merchants from the interior would do well to give them a call.

SALE OF THE WILLOWS.—This valuable property comprising Mission Block, No. 68, and one-half of Mission Block, No. 69, fronting on Mission, Valencia, Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, will be sold in 180 large building lots, at very advantageous terms to the buyer. The sale takes place at the auction rooms of Maurice Dore & Co., 327 Montgomery street, on Wednesday, June 22nd, next.

—We call the especial attention of our ladies to the advertisement in another column of Mr. Carl Limaruti, who is soon to open an immense fashionable Ladies Dress Making Establishment at 105 Post street, near Kearny.

For many years Mr. Hestano, a wealthy gentleman in Posen, Prussia, had been afflicted with a disease of the stomach, which defied the skill of the most eminent doctors in Germany. He felt his end approaching and wrote to his son, who lived in this city, to come and see him. When the young man arrived, he found his father very feeble. The doctors had given him up. Young Hestano, having in his trunk a bottle of Rosenbaum's Bitters, prevailed upon his father to taste a few drops, and wonderful to relate, the old man grew better, and, after using the full bottle, was entirely cured.

We saw a man on his death-bed. Around him his family were weeping. The shades of darkness were fast gathering before his eyes, but death had no terror for him. During his life he had worked hard to place his family above want, but fortune did not favor him. Now that he was called away, he died happy in the knowledge that his loved ones were provided for, as he had a few years ago taken out a life policy in the California Mutual Life Co., No. 13 Merchants' Exchange.

Sulphur Springs is now one of the most fashionable watering-places on the Pacific. Many of the very first families of the land, enjoy themselves during season. The elegance in dresses displayed there is gorgeous indeed, and there is no lady at the place who does not wear one of the splendid cloaks of Messrs. Sullivan & Co., the cloak house of San Francisco.

Dyspepsia in the Pacific States.

Nowhere in the United States has dyspepsia heretofore been more general, or marked with more distressing symptoms, than in California. Luxury, high living and dissipation in the cities; hardship, privation, irregular habits, and the effects of malaria in the mining regions, have combined to render Chronic Indigestion one of the most terrible scourges of the Pacific States. It is a source of satisfaction, therefore, to be able to report the gradual and steady decline of the disease and its distressing concomitants on this side of the Continent. As this happy change began to be perceptible soon after HOS-TETTOR'S STOMACH BITTERS had attained the rank of a STANDARD REMEDY in this region, and, as it has become more and more apparent, in proportion to the increasing sales of the GREAT VEGETABLE SPECIFIC, reason suggests that the bane has been ameliorated and checked by the operations of the GENUINE ELIXIR advertised as its ANTIDOTE. Unprejudiced physicians admit this to be the fact, and abandoning all the ordinary stimulants, as well as the astringent tinctures and mineral excitants of the pharmacopoeia, are now prescribing the BITTERS as a cure for every form of indigestion. The preparation, possesses three great advantages over every other so-called stomachic. It is not merely a tonic, but combines the properties of an anti-bilious medicine, a gentle laxative, and a blood-purifier, with those of a whole-some stimulant. It neither depletes nor excites; but strengthens, soothes, purifies and restores. No medicine ever introduced into the Pacific region has so entirely gained the confidence of every class of society, or approached in the extent of its sales HOS-TETTOR'S STOMACH BITTERS.

Time Tests the Merits of all Things.
FOR THIRTY YEARS PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER has been tested in every variety of climate, and by almost every nation known to Americans. It is the most constant companion and inestimable friend of the missionary and the traveler, on sea and land, and no one should travel on our lakes or rivers without it.

It is a speedy and safe remedy for burns, scalds, cuts, bruises, wounds and various other injuries, as well as for dysentery, diarrhea, and bowel complaints generally, and is admirably suited for every race of men on the face of the globe.

Be sure and call for and get the genuine Pain Killer, as many worthless nostrums have attempted to be sold on the great reputation of this valuable medicine. Directions accompany each bottle.

Price—25 cents, 50 cents, and $1 per bottle. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

NEW LIGHT!—The Patent Portable Vapor Gas Light is the cheapest, safest and best light yet discovered, costing less than one-third as much as coal gas, and equally as good, giving a clear, white, brilliant light, causing no smoke or smell. No more exorbitant gas bills. No more expense for glass chimneys. And if people will consult their own interest and safety by using the Vapor Gas Light, they will have no more coal oil lamp explosions, and for economy it is cheaper than any other light now in use, as thousands will testify who are now using them in the Eastern States. It will not explode, each burner generating its own gas only as fast as consumed, therefore rendering explosion impossible. We have perfect control over the burner, and can use as much or as little light as we choose. Call and see it. P. J. Phillips & Co., No. 650 Market street, San Francisco, Cal.

HOUSEKEEPING.—The many parties now in boarding-houses who intend to set up house-keeping by themselves, will be sure to be thankful to us when we give them a hint where they can buy furniture, all of the best quality, at astonishing low rates. It is of J. A. Shaber, 707 Market street, near Third, manufacturer and dealer in furniture and bedding; who sells his goods cheaper for cash than any other dealer. Don't fail to call.

PARTIES residing in the southern part of the city, and wishing to secure a meal in a really first class Family Restaurant, should not fail to patronize the establishment of Mr. E. F. Swain, 636 Market street. All the delicacies the season affords can always be had there, while the attention leaves nothing to be desired. The place is open till after the close of the theatres.

PHOTOGRAPHING.—We verily believe that Messrs. Bradley and Bulofson are entitled not only to the confidence, but the gratitude of this entire community for the many improvements made in the art of Photography. They are pre-eminently the leaders of the art in San Francisco. Go and see their "Rustic" and Marine Photographs. If you want a good picture go to Bradley & Bulofson.

ATTENTION.—If you want a good fitting pair of boots or shoes made to order, at liberal prices, go to Beez & de Longe, No. 315 Bush street. These gentlemen will give to everybody satisfaction, and guarantee for their work.

—Merchants, visiting this city, should not fail to secure rooms at the "Cosmopolitan Hotel," S. W. corner Bush and Sansome streets. This mammoth establishment can now be said to be at the head of first class hotels in this city. Its rooms are large and lofty, and fitted up with unsurpassable elegance, while the table is always supplied with all delicacies the season affords.

WHERE to buy good boots and shoes is an important question. We can recommend all in want of boots, shoes, gaiters, etc., of the very best quality, and at lowest rates, the splendid establishment of Messrs. M. Rosen-thal & Bro., 310 Kearny street. Don't fail to give them a call.

TUCKER & Co., Nos. 101 and 103 Montgomery street, have just received the largest and finest assortment of Watches, Watch Chains, Jewelry, Diamonds, Silverware, Moss Agate, Quartz Jewelry, etc., ever offered for sale in the city, and at greatly reduced prices.

—Für maden Gutsfrauen darauf aufmerk-sam, daß sie in der Intelligenz Office von O'Brien & Ward, Ecke Montgomery und Clay Straßen, stets die besten Dienstboten jeder Art finden.

Photographien.—Von allen Photographien, die uns bis jetzt vor Augen gekommen sind, müssen wir sagen, die des Herrn Brown & Otto, 28 Dritte Straße, verdienen den Preis zuer-kennt zu werden. In jeder Hinsicht auf die Aus-gabe sind die Preise für dieselben viel niedriger, als sie gewöhnlich gefordert werden.

CARD TO THE INSURING PUBLIC

CALIFORNIA INSURANCE COMPANY,
318 California street, San Francisco.

The Board of Directors of the California Insurance Company beg leave to lay the following facts before the business men of California:

The Company has been engaged in the business of Marine Insurance since February, 1861, and in Fire business about three years and a half in all. Its Capital paid in since February, 1861, till August, 1864, was $20,000, when the earnings raised it to $100,000. In July, 1865, $40,000 more was paid in to complete the amount subscribed, viz, $200,000, at which figure it has since remained.

The Company paid, during the ten years of its existence, no less than 325 claims for losses, amounting to $486,171 47, in gold.

It has paid, in dividends, since July, 1866, $198,627 00.

Its average profit from the Insurance business, aside from interest, for ten years has been 30 per cent. on the earned Premiums.

It has resisted, in the Courts, only two claims for losses, and the present is the first occasion on which the payment of any claim by this Company has ever been advertised.

In view of the present competition among Underwriters, occasioned by the intrusion into a profession (requiring prudence, conservatism, and years of experience) of rash and incompetent men, whose only hope is for present profit instead of PERMANENT SOLVENCY, the Stockholders of the California Insurance Company have now increased their Capital Stock by the Subscription, and payment in full, of the $100,000, new stock, authorized in July, last year, making their Capital paid up, in gold, $300,000.

The Directors have reserved a re-issuance fund of $50,000, to meet the outstanding obligations of the Company.

Total Cash Assets, at date, $350,000.

The mode of business, on and after June 1st, will be changed by the adoption of the Mutual System, as practised so successfully, for thirty years, by the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, of New York—that is, all profits from Underwriting will be divided, in scrip, among the holders of the Company's stock, and to bear interest at 6 per cent. per annum. The several issues of scrip to be redeemable in the order of their dates, and all the liabilities of the Company to be guaranteed—first, by the accumulation of the business; second, by the guarantee of the Capital; third, by the personal responsibility of Stockholders, who include among them many of our wealthiest capitalists.

Satisfied, as we are, that the manner in which the insurance business is now mismanaged in this city, that other Companies must, sooner or later, be involved in the calamity that has already befallen two of them, we confidently recommend the CALIFORNIA INSURANCE COMPANY as the nucleus around which the thinking portion of our Premium payers may rally. As our present plan is the same on which the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, of New York, originally started, we see not why, with prudent management, and with the growth of our commerce, our progress may not be proportionally theirs. We offer to our dealers the services of the men who have thus far made the California the most profitable of all the local Companies to its Stockholders, and who have earned for themselves the reputation of thoroughly understanding their business, in all its branches.

Are not these inducements altogether more attractive to business than any heretofore offered to merchants?

Throughout the United States, takes this method of in-forming the public that the GENERAL AGENCY of the BROOK-LYN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, for this Coast, has been transferred to

MESSRS. A. J. BRYANT & CO.,

And would respectfully ask for his successors a continu-ance of the very liberal patronage heretofore bestowed.

The undersigned have entered upon the duties of the General Agency of the Brooklyn Life Insurance Company,

OF NEW YORK.

For the Pacific Coast, and are prepared to issue Policies in this favorite Company, upon any plan selected, and for any amount not exceeding twenty thousand dollars on a life.

The BROOKLYN has gained a reputation for being fore-most in important improvements in the business of Life and Endowment Insurance, and in many respects it pre-sents features unequalled in liberality to the insured by any Company represented on this Coast; among which is the Total Removal of ALL Restrictions on Travel, or Resi-dence in any part of the Globe; that every Policy is Non-Forfeitable; and has the Cash-Surrender Value of each year endorsed thereon. They would be pleased to have their friends and the public call at the Agency and in-vestigate the superior inducements offered by the BROOK-LYN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

MORE THAN 500,000 PERSONS bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY?

They are not a vile FANCY DRINK, made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced, and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c. that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD-PURIFIER and LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Restorer and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter, and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible in the health of the patient. PAIN, TENSE, and other symptoms, actually destroyed and removed. They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic. Possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Biliousness, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs. Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the Blood pure and the health of the system will follow.

gleichviel: diese Art ist am mindesten gefährlich. Aber es steht dir frei, dein Koffgen Jericho zu wenden. Sage dem Ptolemäer: che die Nacht ihre dunkeln Schatten wirft, athmet keiner mehr vom Blute Joarim und was die Braut angeht, so wird Ben-Abob zufrieden sein, sie unter seine Kebsweiber zu zählen. So reite doch, Memme! reite doch und befreie unsern Muth von feigen Belenten!

Ich bin bei der Wahrheit! entschied die Memme; das gekränkte Ehrgefühl zog ihn zu den Anderen und sie lobten ihn wegen seines wiederkehrenden Muthes. Dennoch waren's nur Wenige, denen das abgeschlossene Wesen der Hauptleute nicht beunruhigend auf's Herz fiel, und wäre nicht Jsa ihr Anführer gewesen, sie würden sicherlich von der Schnelligkeit ihrer Pferde Gebrauch gemacht und den Rückzug in wildester Flucht genommen haben.

Im tiefsten Schweigen wurde der Weg zum Herrenhause zurückgelegt; selbst im Thore desselben vernahmte Jsa den Geschnitten; es standen Knechte bereit, das Absteigen von den Pferden zu erleichtern und die Vorhalle öffnete sich den Gästen. Kaum aber hatte der letzte die Schwelle überschritten, so raffelte das Thor hinter ihm zu und in demselben Augenblicke entfielen wie der Erde entwachsend zu beiden Seiten die Reistiggen ihrem unterirdischen Versteck, reichten ihren Mann hinter der menschenförmlichen Bunde und bedrohten sie mehr mit den scharfen Schwertern, als daß sie ihnen den Beweis großer Ehrerbietung gaben.

Kümmert Euch nicht um das, redete der alte Hauptmann den Gefangenen zu, es ist so des Feldherrn kriegerische und eigene Weisheit. Wer hierher kommt, der's Ohr und Aug' müß sich an kriegerisches Treiben gewöhnen.

Wid' zur großen Halle bewegte sich der Zug noch in leiblicher Ordnung; aber die Reistiggen blieben ihm auch bis dahin auf den Fersen und ihre Anzahl mehrte sich bei jedem Schritte, da aus allen Gängen, allen Winkeln die versteinerten hervorquollen. Da schien auch dem unerfahrenen Jsa Kerens Ofal zu bangen; sein Auge glitt über die ungetriebene Begleitung, ja es blickte in die schärften aller Späherblicke durch den kleinsten Raum in ihrem Haufen, ob zu entkommen wäre oder nicht. Aber keine Hoffnung — nicht einmal der Gedanke an eine Möglichkeit, und wider Willen dachte Jsa an den Gräber, an die Flammen und Schwerter des Hölisofens.

Auch von der Halle her erdröhnten ergene Schritte, als wenn eine Unzahl Gehäusgitter den Raum anfüllte. Kein Wort entfiel dem sonst so berebten Munde; auch des Wolfs Scheul verstummt, wenn er in der Grube gefangen liegt und der Waidmann ihm den glühenden Speiß in den Nacken stoßen will. Aus seiner Gedankenlosigkeit wurde Jsa peinlich aufgeschreckt; eine Donnerstimmte befahl, daß die Wauern drohnten: Öffnet die Pforten!

Blitzschnell folgte die That dem Befehl — weitgeöffnet lag die Halle vor den Weuchlern, und an der Schwelle — ein Leichnam; wie aus einem Munde riefen Jsa und seine Gefellen: „Kallistides!“

Kennt Ihr ihn! fragte der Feldhauptmann. Aber steigt getroßt über den Leichnam hinweg und bringt Euer Gewerbe bei mir an, den Ihr sucht. Diesen da habt Ihr gefunden ohne ihn gesucht zu haben; ich denke Euch mit noch mehr Unerwartetem zu überraschen. Wist am Euch, überall umgiebt Euch eine Eisenmaner, vor vernahrt mit spitigen Schwertern. Wer ist Euer Sprecher?

Jsa trat hervor. Drei Schritte! nicht mehr! Dich und deinesgleichen darf man sich nicht zu nahe kommen lassen; unversehens steht Ihr den arglos Vertrauten mit giftigen Zahn und fällt den Edelsten, den Besten in kaltem Mordelmoth!

Herr, du kühnst, du schmähtst und ich weiß doch nicht —

Schweig, Gendler! Sprichst der Todte dort nicht laut genug gegen Euch und Eure Unthat? Erd' und Himmel müßt ich anrufen, mit mir zu weinen; aber ich weine nicht, ich räche! Ich bin ein Kind des Krieges, aufgefängt mit Blut und ferne kein weibliches Erbarmen! Wer ist unter Euch, der der Wahrheit die Ehre geben mag? Vater und Brüder sind mir in Jericho ermordet, Ihr seid gekommen, mich zu fällen; aber — bei dem großen Gott! den letzten Maktabäer tödtet solche Brut nimmermehr!

Nicht allein den Abgesandten von Jericho, auch den Hauptleuten und Reistiggen, den Getreuen erbeute das Herz bei solchen Worten, die der jorsprühende Feldherr wie tödtliche Geschosse schleuderte.

Aber Jsa und seine Gefellen schwiegen. Also Reiter unter Euch, der Wahrheit hat? — Wohlan denn — hier will ich zum ersten Mal ein Blutgericht halten. Der Henker trete vor! Ist dein Schwert auch scharf? Nicht deinen Naden gilt's, es gilt diese Alle! Vereite dich — Nur einem fiel das Leben geschenkt und die Freiheit. Dieser Eine soll der sein, welcher zuerst und aus freiem Antriebe ein vollständiges Bekenntniß ablegt. — Nun, wer will sein Leben, seine Freiheit retten? Wer bezeugen, daß in Jericho Simon, Juda und Mathatias mit ihren Knechten schändlich ermordet sind — wer, daß Ihr hierher abgeschickt seid, den Leuten aus dem Blute Joarim abzuschlachten? —

Dampf und schwer hing ein todähnliches Schweigen über die Versammlung; aber ein Donner aus heiterer Bläue kam den einsamen Wanderer, und führte der Strahl zu seinen Füßen nieder, nicht so erschrecken, als Jsa's Wort die Bunde erschreckte:

Ich will's! Welche Teufelsfragen stellten da auf einmal dem Auge des Feldhauptmanns sich dar! Jede Leidenschaft ging unter in den Ausdruck von Grimm und Verrath. So war die Bunde anzuschauen; aber in der ganzen Halle war nicht ein Gesicht zu finden, das nicht die tiefste Verachtung ausstrahlte. Johannes sprach mit bitterm Lächeln: „Meiner Treu! hab' schon oft von der Schlechtigkeit und Verworfenheit der Menschen gehört und Vieles davon gesehen; aber dieser Mensch ist ein Abgott aller Erdbereborenen und ich preise dich, Gott Israels, daß er ein Abtrünniger ist; irgend eine Gemeinshaft mit ihm würde mich zur Verzeihung bringen: ich müßte mein treues Schwert zerbrechen, aus Scham, daß ich mit solchen Verworfenen einem und demselben Gott diene! Leben und Freiheit! Reist denn das Leben, wenn man nur in Schlamm der Sünde wühlt? — Du hast dich angeboten; aber ich will dein Bekenntniß nicht; ein Anderer als du mag sich lösen.

Da wollte Jeder der Erste sein; doch Johannes mühte dem Jüngsten und erfuhr, was er von Kallistides wußte. Um Theil an der Gnade zu haben, bezeugten die Uebrigen, was der Jüngste ausgesagt, und flehten dann zu des Feldherrn Füßen.

Ich halte, was ich versprochen, entschied der; dieser da, der jüngste unter Euch, ist frei: er wird nach Jericho zurückkehren und verkündigen, was er hier gesehen. Ihr forget — richtete er das Wort an die Hauptleute — daß er sicher nach Jericho gelange. Jsa Kerens Ofal, du geleitest mich gen Jericho. Schmeidet ihn in Fesseln, als wolltet Ihr Satan selbst festhalten. Für dich wäre der Tod in dieser Halle und von meines Henters Schwerte eine Wohlthat. Ich aber habe mehr mit dir in Sinn; Du sollst mir einen großen Dienst erweisen, über dir sollen die Worte stehen: „So strakt Johannes der letzte Maktabäer den Abtrünnigen!“ — Ihr Andern seid dem Hentzer zur Stunde schon verfallen — findet Euch mit dem, was Ihr glaubet. Hentzer, thu deine Pflicht!

Zehntes Kapitel.

Unter den Marmorplatten des Risthause raffelte es mit schweren Ketten; Jsa Kerens Ofal lag da gefangen. Gleich der ungezähmten Beute im einverwahrten Käfig lag der Unhold; aber ruhig, trieb die Durst nach Blut und Freiheit, trieb die das Bewußtsein der Verworfenheit in dem einen Halbkreis, den die in der Mauer befestigte Kette zuließ, hin und wieder. Die Nacht des Kerens war von den vorrückenden Wächtern gelichtet; jeden Augenblick, so lautete der Befehl des Feldherrn, sollte einer der Wächter nach dem Gefangenen sehen. Die gewaltige mit Eisen beschlagene Thür blieb zwar verschlossen, doch man hatte sie unmerklich durchbohrt, damit dem Auge die freie Ueberblick des Kerens gestattet wäre. Eine verummutete Gestalt stand seit Stunden schon vor dem Guckloche; die Wächter fannien sie und wußten, daß sie zuverlässig war. Es war David Ben Jsa Kerens Ofal; dem Volke indeß nur unter dem Namen David bekannt; und wie konnten die jungen Gefellen, Knechte von den Inseln, ahnen, wie nahe der Befehlshaber dem Gefangenen stehe. Durch alle Straßen war ausgerufen worden: über die Abtrünnigen im Lande werde im Risthause vor allem Volk abgeurtheilt werden, das Volk sollte sich einfänden. Der nächste Morgen schon war zu dem Blutgericht bestimmt; wozu zu verwundern, daß David, der Hauptmann der Schaarwacht, seine ganze Nachtruhe der Sicherheit des Ganzen opferte?

Der Dahn trahte zum dritten Male, da stürzte David vor sich hin: Es ist Zeit. — Und zu den Knechten trat er und sprach: Ihr Leute, die Morgenluft ist im Anzuge, da wird man müde, ich weiß das aus langer Erfahrung. Ich bleibe hier — auf Stunden möget Ihr der Ruhe genießen, denn ein mühevoller Tag steht bevor.

Und sie befolgten gern das Wort des Hauptmanns; denn er hatte ja im Munde des hingemordeten Fürsten gesehnen und war einer, der niemals schlumderathen mochte.

David befand sich in einer Lage, wie sie wohl selten vorkommt im Leben. Die Wahl, welche ihm vorlag, war die schwerste; es galt einen Vater, seinen Vater vom schimpflichen und schmerzhaftesten Tode zu retten, die Fesseln zu zerbrechen, das Volk um das Opfer zu betrügen; oder die Stimme der Natur gewaltfam zu unterdrücken und am Ende wohl gar noch das Glück zu haben, den Verurtheilten nach der Schädelstätte zu führen. Auf sich selbst beschränkt zu Rath und That, fühlte er sich zu schwach einen Entschluß zu fassen, drum hatte er seine Kaita ins Geheimniß gezogen und diese edle Frauensleue ihn in der Absicht, den Vater um jeden Preis zu retten, mit fiegender Verbsamkeit bestärkt.

So stand er nun vor der niedern Pforte, demjenigen nahe, dessen Name er seit lange verlernt hatte. Hinter ihm hatten die Wächter in Gruppen sich gelagert und waren in'sgesammt dem Schlaf in die Arme gesunken. David empfand nichts von dem Unheimlichen, in der Nähe schlafender Mitmenschen der einzige Wache zu sein; denn sein Blick hing unermüdet an den wilden Bewegungen des Gefesteten. Zwar drangen die Worte, die Jsa ausrief, nicht vernehmlich zu des Spähenden Ohr; sein verzerrtes Antlitz aber, sein rollendes Auge und ein dumpfes Geheul sagten weit mehr als gesprochenes Wort. Er stampfte den Boden, umkrampfte die starken Ketten und verjuchte sie zu prengen, spie die Erde an und drohte mit geballter Faust nach Oben — Teufel und Gott hatte er zu seiner Hülf beschworen: er war von Hölle und Himmel verflucht — der Erde gehörte er an. Da warf er sich, in gänzlicher Abspannung seiner Seelen- und Körperkräfte auf das dürstige Lager und stöhnte gleich einem Sterbenden.

David öffnete unthörbar die Thür — er stand vor dem Urheber seiner Lage. Jsa stierte ihn an und keuchte:

Du bist du dennoch gekommen auf meinen Ruf, Sohn der ewigen Züfterniß? Mich focht ein niegelantes Grauen; aber löse meine Bunde und ich folge dir! Eher in die Hölle als nach Golgatha! Höre mich, Du Urkraft alles Bösen! Ich bin dein! Ich deiner Hülf würdig!

Ayer's
Hair Vigor,
For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth.
Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed.
But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous.
Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,
nothing else can be found so desirable.
Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.
